

A hearing on Rep. Lee Terry's legislation aimed at forcing approval of the Keystone XL pipeline started contentiously, right out of the gate, this morning.

The hearing before a subcommittee of the House Energy and Commerce Committee is on the Nebraska Republican's proposal to hand authority over the pipeline permit process to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

To continue reading this article click here .